

At least someone in Europe likes us!

The UK has never been popular in the corridors of power in Brussels, but we do at least have a few friends on the continent.

Readers may like to hear from one of these people – Hans-Olaf Henkel, an MEP from the German LKR party, the Liberal & Conservative Reformers, who split from the AfD party in 2015. In this short video clip, he makes the amazing statement that “the last country with any common sense is going to leave the European Union.”