

Leaving the EU – a Futurus briefing by Anthony Scholefield

Implementing the voters' decision for Brexit is a huge task. This paper analyses the way forward and recommends the most advantageous political and economic means of controlling the process.

The paper looks at the reasons why people voted to leave and summarises the debate since June 23rd. It considers how the concerns of business can be squared with a desire of many voters to restrict immigration from the EU.